

ABSTRACT

A position adjusting means is provided at an outer periphery of an objective lens opposite to an observation sample and the observation sample is moved by the position
5 adjusting means in an optical axis direction of the objective lens to set a focal point of the objective lens to the observation sample.